BIA by-law enacted - merchants have 60 days to register objections

Plans to implement a Business Improvement Area (BIA) for the core area of the village moved a step closer to reality Wednesday when Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council passed the resolution formerly creating the area.

The next step in the process is a 60 day waiting period during which time the businesses within the proposed BIA will be informed of the passing of the by-law and will have an opportunity to object. If objections are received from businesses representing 1/3 of the merchant or business assessment in the area, they must be considered before a hearing of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). If the OMB rejects the objections the by-law will come into force and all businesses within the designated area will be charged the extra levy to help pay for a BIA program.

If the OMB upholds the objections, if there are any, the municipality can attempt to change the boundaries of the BIA to exclude the objectors. If that is not possible, the plan will have to be dropped.

Included in the BIA by-law passed Wednesday are all businesses on the west side of Bobcaygeon Road from the Minden Fruit Stand to Minden Collision Service, all businesses on the east side of Bobcaygeon Road from Rockory's Bait to Dr. John Purc's office, and all businesses on South Water Street from Bobcaygeon Road to the Brewer's Retail Store.

Councillor Stuart Brandon, who has been a moving force behind the push to have a BIA established, suggested those merchants who are in favour of the by-law, contact township office to let officials know. He said if enough merchants indicate they are in favour of the BIA the municipality might not have to wait the two months which has been set aside for objection. This could help to speed the organizing and planning which must take place prior to the start of the actual redevelopment work.

Possible flaw

There is one fly in the ointment, however. A clause within the BIA legislation stipulates that a community enacting a redevelopment scheme must have an official plan.

The meeting was told on Wednesday that this community does not have one but that efforts are now being made to have that stipulation waived. Councillor Stuart Brandon said he had already spoken to a number of officials in the Ministry of Housing to see if the exemption might be a possibility. He said he had expected to receive an answer by last Wednesday, but none had come.

A representative of the ministry, Pat Vanini, was at the meeting to discuss a number of other items with the councillors. She said she would attempt to secure the exemption for the municipality.

The spokesman noted that an official plan designation requires a great deal of preparatory work which could take up to 12 months. This could prove to be a serious blow to the momentum built up behind the BIA program. She agreed with the council that the county planning strategy might be substituted for an official plan in this case to facilitate the introduction of the BIA.

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt pointed out that the Ministry of Housing had delayed the creation of an official plan for the rest of the county (the municipality of Dysart et al has an official plan) until the lakeshore capacity study is completed. This placed the community in a "no win" situation, the reeve said because it cannot proceed with the BIA without an official plan but no official plan can be created because of all the necessary preliminary studies are not completed.

The reeve said he hoped this dilemma would help persuade the Housing Minister to grant the exemption. Nesbitt said it was the intention of the Minden township to proceed with an official plan as soon as the studies were completed.

The Ministry of Housing representative said she would attempt to obtain clarification of the situation from ministry officials as quickly as possible.

Council threatens to sue ministry

Minden Municipal Council has become frustrated in its attempts to get what it considers a satisfactory response from the Ministry of the Environment (MOE) and has threatened to take the provincial department to court.

The frustration arises from the installation of sewer and water services in the community two years ago. At that time the ministry was forced to dig up portions of the Minden streets in order to bury the sewer and water lines. In addition, a water tank was built on the large hill in the centre of town and a road constructed to that facility.

In the past few years the areas where the sewer and water lines have been installed have been deteriorating. The pavement covering these excavations has cracked and sagged leaving the streets in the village rutted and uneven. In addition the municipal council believes the MOE had promised to construct a proper road to the water storage tank. However, the council says the road is not wide enough to be accepted as an official road by the municipality or the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

In both cases the municipal council has said the MOE is responsible for these shortcomings. On a number of occasions MOE officials have toured the community with the members of the council to view first hand the areas of complaint, but the matter has never been resolved to the council's satisfaction.

As the council met last Wednesday, Councillor Stuart Brandon suggested that since the municipality has been unable to obtain any satisfaction from the ministry it should seek legal redress. He suggested that a figure of half a million dollars might be

Storm raised over cement plant

An attempt to establish a ready-mix cement plant on the Highway 35 by-pass, on land owned by Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt, has been stopped by Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council. The move came at the May 14 vote following a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion.

The meeting was told by by-law enforcement officer Dick Schell that the owners, McConnell's Ready Mix had been allowed to begin setting up the cement mixing operation on the location even though no permit had been applied for. "I felt there was none required," the by-law officer commented. "The area is zoned for general commercial use and, since that includes building supplies, I felt the company was allowed to locate there." Schell noted that the Ministry of Transportation and Communications had given permission to the company to operate from that location. He said they had received a temporary permit for a one year period.

The by-law officer said that since the company had started installing its equipment a controversy over the plant

Firemen to receive thirty year medals

Minden Fire Chief Deac Jackson, at the wheel, and Captain Eldon Deacon, will be honoured later this month for their 30 years service to the brigade. Both have been members of the fire department since its early beginnings shortly after World War Two.

The Province of Ontario later this month will pay tribute to two residents of Minden who have dedicated over 30 years of their lives to this community's volunteer fire brigade.

Fire Chief William "Deac" Jackson and Captain Eldon Deacon will receive medals for their dedication to the local brigade. The two have already received the certificates announcing the honour and will be presented with the medals in a ceremony May 30 at the Ontario Fire

College in Gravenhurst.

The Minden volunteer brigade was formed shortly after the close of World War Two. The Minden Businessmen's Association was jolted into the reality that the community had no fire protection when, in 1942, a blaze leveled one side of main street. Following the war a volunteer brigade under the direction of Ern Hewitt was formed.

Each of the businesses in the community was asked to designate one member of their staff to serve on the brigade.

A hose trailer and portable pump were purchased and in 1946 the community had its first organized and equipped fire brigade.

The business association was responsible for the brigade until 1950 when the municipality took over.

Deac has been a member of the brigade since its formation in 1946, although official records have only been kept from 1950. He was promoted to the rank of captain in 1955, deputy chief in 1961 and chief in 1976.

Eldon's term also stretched back to before accurate records of the brigade were being maintained. He joined the department in 1948, advancing to the rank of captain in 1955, deputy chief in 1959 and chief in 1961. Eldon stepped down as head of the brigade in 1976 resuming his rank as captain. He continues to serve in that capacity with the Minden Department.

Rock concert audience gets 'pat on back' from sergeant

Sergeant Bill Bailey of the Minden OPP detachment has praise for the people who attended the rock concert Sunday evening in Minden.

"They deserve a pat on the back," the sergeant commented, "if they continue to act the way they did Sunday evening there is no reason why the concerts should not be allowed to continue through the summer."

There had been some concern about the concerts, particularly after a police cruiser was damaged last year outside the arena and officers from the detachment were harassed by some members of the crowd.

The past Sunday four cruisers were in evidence at the arena parking lot. Random checks of the vehicles and the occupants were carried out resulting in a number of charges for liquor violations. "We seized a number of bottles of liquor and cases of beer," the sergeant commented, "and charges were laid in a number of instances, but there were no drugs found in the search of the autos."

Signs leading into the arena parking area indicated that it was under police patrol.

The sergeant said the promoter had been co-operative in helping to ease the problem. He noted that the patrons were allowed to enter the arena early, eliminating the line-up outside the building, an apparent source of problem last year. Security provided by the promoter also screened the patrons at the door and bottles of beer and liquor found on those people entering the arena were deposited in a garbage can by the door.

According to the sergeant, the promoter asked for the co-operation of the crowd prior to the start of the Sunday concert. He told the audience that unless they continue to act in an orderly manner the series of concerts planned for the summer would have to be cancelled. His comments drew a round of applause from the audience.

Police estimate that about 75% of the crowd were from Haliburton County while others had travelled from outside the area to attend the performance.

Sergeant Bailey said that the wet weather experienced on the weekend had probably been responsible for a low attendance. The promoter had been expecting 1500 to 2000, but apparently only 750 tickets were sold.

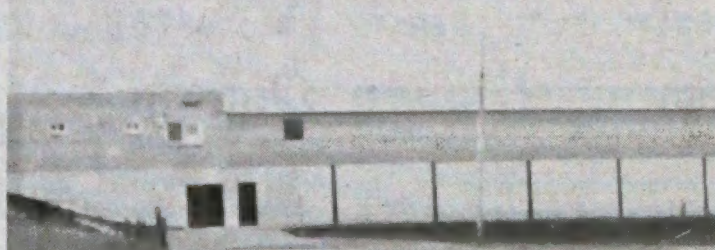

Appeal to council

The sergeant had appeared before Anson, Hindon and Minden council Wednesday to voice his concern over the concerts planned for the summer. He told the council that he was concerned about fire safety at the arena and the control of the crowd. He also questioned whether health and sanitation facilities are adequate at the arena for 2000 people.

Noting that it was the council's responsibility, he questioned whether a bond had been requested from the promoter to cover damage from fire or vandalism.

Stressing that he was in favour of the concerts if they were aimed at providing entertainment for local youths, the sergeant said he was concerned that advertising posters had been found in Lindsay and Peterborough. He noted that an agreement between the promoter and the municipal recreation committee had stated that the advertising would be limited to the county.

Councillor Stuart Brandon said he was concerned that the sergeant would be complaining about a rock music concert which, in his words, "caused less problems than some of the hockey games." He pointed out that the contract with the promoter involves just the first concert and that if there is any problem the committee does not have to renew the contract.

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt told the sergeant that the township council shared his concern. "However, the committee has made a commitment to the promoter and if there is a problem he just won't be allowed to return to Minden."

The reeve said that the recreation committee should be instructed to ensure the promoter follows the agreement with regard to advertising and the popularity of the performers. When the agreement was struck between the promoter and the committee there was an understanding that less popular groups would be used to reduce the appeal to people from outside the immediate Haliburton County area.

This sign greeted members of the audience as they arrived at the Minden arena Sunday evening for a rock music concert. Police were in evidence in the parking area checking automobiles and occupants for drugs and alcohol.

Cement plant

had erupted and he was bringing the matter to the council's attention for their consideration.

Several large tanks for cement, water and other ingredients for ready-mix cement have already been erected on the property on the east side of the highway near the Prince Street exit.

Councillor Stuart Brandon described the installation as "in direct contravention of our zoning by-law. If we allow the plant to be operated in that location we are open to a suit from any member of this municipality," the councillor commented. He pointed out, along with other members of the council, that the zoning by-law specifically states that concrete mixing plants must be located in M1 or M2 (industrial) zoned areas.

No land in the municipality has been zoned for industrial purposes.

Brandon challenged the contention of the by-law officer that the plant was a building supply outlet. "A factory where they make nails is not a building supply outlet," he said, "and neither is a cement mixing plant."

Deputy Reeve Doug Pritchard added that zoning supplies in the zoning regulations referred to retail operations. He described the cement mixing facility as a "factory."

Pritchard said the company should have come to the council first before starting to erect the equipment. He described cement mixing as, "not the cleanest operation in the world" noting that "dust flies all over the place" and that cement dust would be blowing across the highway when the plant was in operation.

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt repeated a number of times during the discussion that he had simply rented the property to the company and that the responsibility for obtaining the necessary permits and ensuring the zoning was correct was left with the company. Later in the discussion however, the reeve said he had checked with his lawyer and had been told that it would be within the law to have the plant locate there.

Nesbitt claimed that when the zoning by-law was enacted he had not been informed of the change in the status of his property. The reeve said that under the land's previous designation a cement plant would have been permitted. Nesbitt said the municipality should not be permitted to change the zoning on a person's property without informing the people involved.

Councillor Lyle McKnight commented, "What's the use of having a zoning by-law at all if we allow people to erect things, like a cement plant, wherever they want to."

The resolution passed by the council stated that the construction of the ready-mix plant would have to cease and that the owners would be given 30 days in which to appear before council to seek to have the land rezoned. In the meantime the plant is not to be operated.

Pair believed drowned in Horseshoe Lake

Minden OPP are continuing to search Horseshoe Lake for the bodies of two individuals believed to have drowned after their canoe capsized.

Missing and presumed dead are Trisha Brans, 19, of West Hill Ontario and Daniel E. Biss, 21, of Scarborough. The two are believed to have gone out on the lake in the early hours of Sunday morning in a canoe. The overturned craft was found floating near the shore along the Reynolds road the following morning and the police search was started.

OPP divers combed the waters of the lake near the Cupboard Store Monday and four divers were on the scene all day Tuesday. According to a spokesman for the police, the cold water of the lake, the temperature of the water is just above 40 degrees, is causing problems for the divers. The fact that the location of where the boat overturned is unknown has also added to the difficulty of the search.

Mill rate up - budget down in Lutterworth

Lutterworth Township ratepayers will notice an increase in their tax bills this year even though the overall budget for the municipality has decreased by some $10,000.

The total budget expenditure for the municipality for 1980 has been estimated at $102,627. This compares with $112,522 last year. However, as the township clerk treasurer Wayne Hughes pointed out, the 1979 budget had been tempered by a $30,000 surplus which remained from the previous year. This extra sum helped to reduce the amount of tax dollars that had to be raised during 1979.

This year the municipality also has a surplus, but the amount is much smaller, $3,348. So, although the total amount budgeted for this year by the municipality has dropped sharply from last year, the township taxpayers will be asked to pay more than they did in 1979.

In all other areas, the county levy, and taxes for elementary and secondary school purposes, increases have been noted. Hughes pointed out that the elementary school budget had jumped from $109,760 in 1979 to $121,711 this year for township residents. The cost of secondary school education borne by the municipality's ratepayers has also increased from $90,230 to $102,835 this year. An increase in the county assessment was also noted from $43,159 to $44,622 in 1980.

Hughes pointed out that the township has no control over the budgets set for education and county levies. These amounts are the responsibility of the Board of Education and County Council he said and the municipality has nothing to do with them other than it must act as the collector of the taxes.

The value of the assessment in the township, on which the collection of taxes is based, is $369,085 for residential property and $35,475 for commercial property.

In a prepared press release, the clerk pointed out that 1980 mill rates for residential and commercial property in the township are four mills lower than those in 1977. "The percentage increase for the total residential mill rate for the four year period from 1977 is about 5% per year, and only 6% per year for the commercial sector," the press release stated.

The following mill rates for 1980 were approved at the May 22 meeting of Lutterworth Township council. The figures in the brackets indicate the rate in 1979.

Editorial

Setting an example

One of the most important aspects of life in a civilized society is the need for all citizens to strive to uphold the laws of the land, and ensure that others follow the same code. Obeying the law and bringing pressure, subtle or otherwise, to bear on those who might break the law, plays a major part in ensuring an orderly lifestyle exists in the community.

While all citizens have a responsibility for ensuring that they adhere to the laws of the land, those who are entrusted with making and enforcing the laws have a special responsibility. Those who are elected should be well versed in the many aspects of the laws which they administer. They also should strive to set examples for others in the community to show that living within the law is both desirable and possible.

With these thoughts in mind, we reject completely the comments of Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt at last Wednesday's council meeting that he was not responsible for activities taking place on land he owned, but rented to another individual.

The council was discussing the erection of a cement mixing plant on land owned by the reeve, adjacent to Highway 35. All of the councillors were of the opinion that the plant was in an area which did not permit such operations. It was pointed out that the zoning regulations of the community specified the area to be used for general commercial purposes only. Another portion of the zoning regulations, indicating what is permitted in an industrial zone, stated that cement mixing plants must be located only in such areas.

The reeve told the meeting that he was not responsible for what was taking place on his property. He said the onus rested with the people who had rented the property from him.

While the renters do have a responsibility to obtain the necessary permits and approvals before beginning work on the site, Nesbitt as the landowner, had an equal responsibility for ensuring what was taking place was within the limits of the local by-laws. In this case, however, the reeve chose to turn his back, to ignore what was taking place, even though there is little doubt that he was aware the operation of a cement plant in that location was contrary to municipal by-laws.

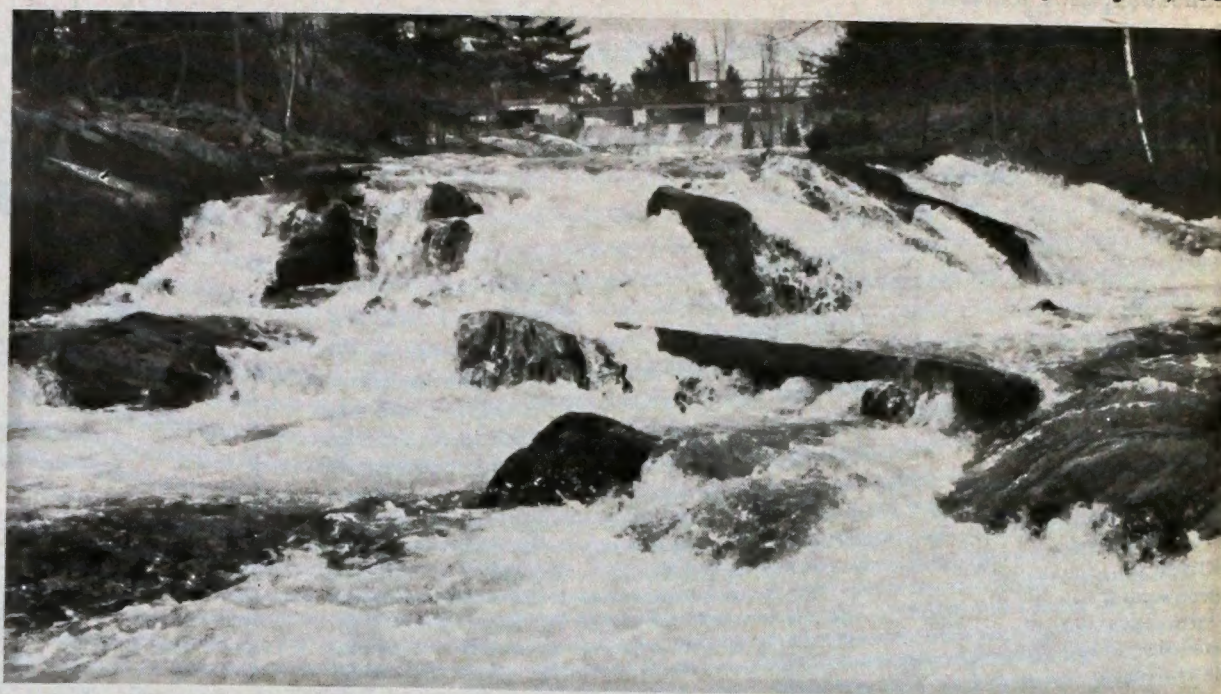

The cement plant was clearly being erected in an area where it did not comply with the zoning. The people who were erecting it were doing so without a building permit. It appears that the only approval they received was from the Ministry of Transportation and Communications for use of the access point.

It will appear to many people that either Reeve Nesbitt felt the plant could proceed simply because it was located on property he owned, or the head of our municipal government was woefully misinformed about one of the most basic aspects of municipal law, zoning restrictions. Either case points to a serious lack of concern for the responsibilities which have been entrusted to him.

The reeve has indicated he questions the validity of the zoning by-law under which his property has been designated for general commercial purposes. He may certainly be right in this regard, but if he wishes to challenge a by-law there are proper forums for those objections to be heard. Certainly it is improper to seek a solution outside of prescribed manner.

Township council were correct to order a halt to the construction of the cement mixing plant and we applaud their vigilance. Until the land in question is zoned for industrial purposes, or the plant relocates to an area where industrial zoning exists, it should not be allowed to operate.

Elected officials at all levels of government have a responsibility to not only obey the laws, but to make a serious effort to ensure that others in the community do the same.

Elliott Falls, near Norland

REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT

by William C. Scott, M.P.

Three months after the Liberal government was returned to power in Ottawa we are still waiting for some sign as to what the government plans in the way of assistance to small businesses in our country.

As I have said over and over again, during the past few years, the importance of small businesses in Canada cannot be over-stated.

It has been estimated that small businesses provide more than 60 percent of all jobs held by Canadians, and a proportionate amount of purchasing power and taxes for all levels of government.

In spite of this dominant position in our economy, small businesses are the most vulnerable and least protected link in the national economic chain.

In 1979, for instance, there were more than 7,500 small business failures. In 1978 there were more than 6,000, and in 1977 there were more than 5,000 failures of small businesses.

What this means is, in clear and frightening statistics, that failures in the small business community are increasing at a rate of more than 20 per cent per year.

What we should have in Canada today is a decrease in business failures, and an increase in start-ups of new businesses. This can be accomplished, but if the present process is to be reversed, the federal government will have to re-assess its priorities.

Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Herb Gray has had a fixation for years about what he calls his "buy back Canada" policy, and now that he is in the federal cabinet again he is pushing his policy for all it's worth.

Gray is also concentrating on taxing healthy corporations to bail out ailing companies in Canada, and while the philosophy might be commendable, like his buy-back-Canada policy, there can be serious consequences for our country if they are not pursued in the context of our free-enterprise economy.

Gray wants to buy up foreign-owned companies and subsidiaries in Canada with tax monies. That would be wasteful and inefficient. What I would rather see is a Canadian industrial community that is healthy enough to buy up outstanding shares of foreign-owned companies on the open market. This policy would enhance rather than diminish our free enterprise economy.

Gray must exercise extreme care in bailing out ailing industries with tax monies collected from healthy corporations. Imposing burdensome and crippling taxes on healthy industries will only serve to create a new crop of ailing companies, and the vicious circle will be perpetuated.

What Herb Gray should be concentrating on right now is policies that would assist small businesses to survive high interest rates on capital, sudden shifts in market conditions, and other factors that they cannot control, and to assist start-ups of new businesses.

It is inevitable that there will be failures in the small business community, for a number of reasons. Some businesses are under-capitalized or over-capitalized, and when this is combined with a lack of business acumen or experience, failures can occur. Failures can be forced upon anyone by changes in market conditions, or lack of public demand for a product.

While failures are inevitable, the overall effect on the economy can and should be minimized by government programs and policies that will enable other businesses to expand, and for new businesses to be started up.

There must be a federal business development agency similar to the Ontario Development Corporation, and for maximum benefit the federal and provincial programs must be co-ordinated and complimentary to each other. A fund to provide capital assistance to small businesses, at reasonable rates of interest, must be established and maintained, and here again this could be made more effective if it is a joint federal/provincial effort.

The present government in Ottawa says that it plans to implement the Small Business Development Bond program initiated by the Progressive Conservative government last year. That would be a step in the right direction.

Point of view

Consumers get royal flush

Mel Swart, NDP member of the Ontario Legislature for the riding of Welland-Thorold, is concerned about the price of bathroom tissue, it has been an issue he has pursued with the provincial government with some vigor. His latest commentary on the matter is reprinted below:

The rip-off on bathroom tissue continues and it's not only where it is perforated! Consumers are being zapped by exorbitant prices with the acquiescence of Mr. Frank Drea, the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations for the Province.

There is no possible justification for the retail price of tissue increasing by 13% in the last nine months. How can it be justified when the profits, in general, of the forest products industries jumped 60% in 1979 after a massive 100% increase in 1979?

E.B. Eddy, one of the major producers of bathroom tissue is a classic example of the price exploitation of the Ontario consumer. It's profits last year (at $47 million before taxes), were more than double the previous year. In spite of this, it increased the price of its tissue. Even worse, because the consumer has no way of checking it, the amount of tissue (by weight) in a roll is now slightly less than it was nine months ago.

This company which is part of the giant Weston, Loblaw's chain, continues to sell its made in Canada bathroom tissue at a lower price in the U.S. than here. A four-roll pack of "White Swan" costs

$1.47 in the supermarkets here. "Soft and Pure" (Eddy's equivalent product for the U.S. market), sells in N.Y. State for 99¢ to $1.09. Its wholesale price in Canada is $29.98 per case. In N.Y. State, it is $23.40 (U.S. dollars). After allowing for the dollar differential, sales tax, U.S. import duties, and all other factors, its net price to U.S. supermarkets is lower than it is to Ontario outlets. I do not object, of course, to this company selling to the U.S. market, but what a way to use

Ontario consumers, especially when this Company just got $25 million in grants from our governments — $16 2/3 million of it from Ontario taxpayers!

Although all bathroom tissue sold in Canada is produced here, there are only a very few companies in the field and they are mostly multinationals. And the multinational pricing practices are even worse. For example, the four-pack of "Cottonelle" (Scott Paper), retails at $1.09 in the U.S. and $1.55 here. No wonder that the compound profit of paper and forest product operations

Canoe canoe?...May certainly can

While May Minto hasn't been in a canoe in years, she's been into them for a lot longer than that.

May is a Minden resident who has been making cedar strip canoes since her family lived at the University of Toronto Survey Camp on Deep Bay Road. The family lived there from 1920 to 1955 when they opened Minto Marine on Highway 35 near the southern entrance to the community.

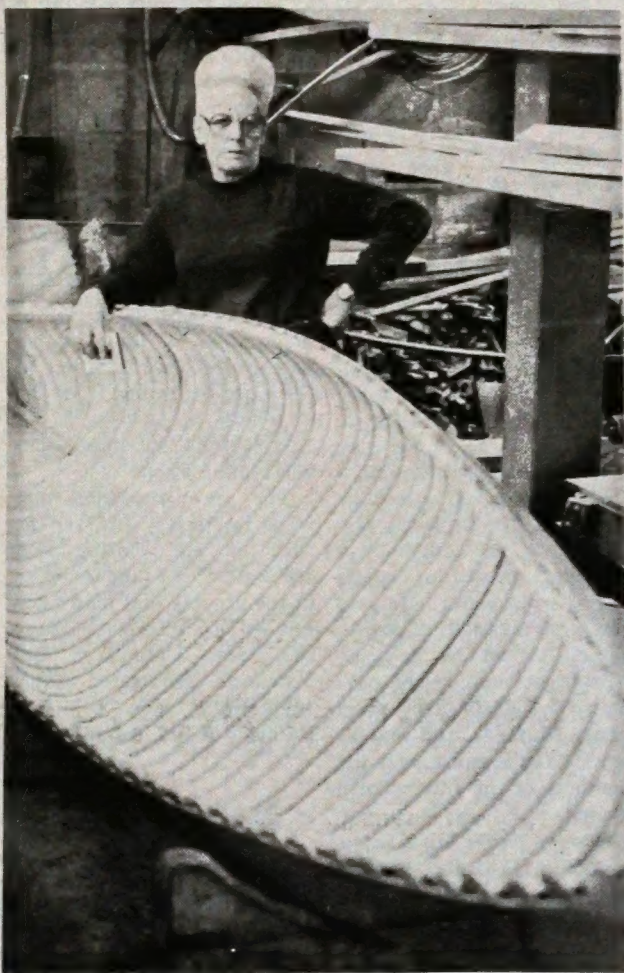

The family enterprise found a ready market for the product in the many children's camps in the area. Private individuals also realized the value of the hand made crafts.

The Minto's sold their interest in the marina in 1975 but May continued to operate her shop in the basement of the house and the boat storage shed to the rear of the showroom.

Each winter, as the local lakes and rivers are closed in with ice, she quietly shapes the oak stems and gunwales around the 12 and 16 foot forms fashioned by her brother.

White cedar ribs are stretched across the inverted form as the skeleton of the canoe takes shape. All of the wood used in the process is milled in the shop to meet May's standards.

Once the ribs are in place, strips of cedar are laid lengthwise over the ribs and secured with nails. Small short tacks are used to hold the strips down, and depending on the width of the cedar strips, one canoe can have as many as

May Minto with the frame of a of a partially completed canoe. This past winter she made ten canoes.

5000 tacks.

With the cedar in place, ten pound white canvas is stretched over the outside of the canoe and held with staples. A "secret" mixture of canvas filler is then rubbed into the coverings giving it strength by filling the spaces between the pores of the material.

The filler takes several weeks to harden and then is hand sanded. According to May, using a machine to sand the surface of the canoe would likely remove most of the filler which has been applied and possibly damage the canvas.

The inner and outer gunwales are installed and the keel is attached to the underside of the canoe. The seats and thwarts are added and the canoe is just about finished.

Three coats of varnish cover the interior wood while marine paint is used on the exterior of the canoe to complete the job.

"It is difficult to say exactly how long it takes to make one canoe," May comments. "I would estimate there is a week's manhours in each boat, however since there is so much drying time involved it takes much longer to complete one canoe."

The final product weighs 65 pounds for a 16 foot canoe and 45 pounds for the 12 foot model. The longer canoe sells for $895 while the shorter canoe costs $835.

In addition to building new canoes, May has completed ten during the past winter and all have been spoken for, she spends a great deal of time recanvassing canoes that have become damaged or weather-worn. This year she recanvassed about 60 canoes, most of them for area camps.

Most of the canoes on the market today are made from fibre glass. May says that the cedar strip, canvas covered canoes are superior to the factory made models because they are easier to handle in the water.

Her advice for anyone contemplating the purchase of a canoe is to examine the curves. "The quality of wood is important as is the workmanship, but one of the best ways of judging the quality of a canoe is to examine the opposing curves. If they are matching it is a sign of careful workmanship."

She also has advice for canoe owners on how to store their boats to get the longest life out of them. "Basically, it is a matter of keeping the boat dry when it is not in use. Keep it out of the water when you are not using it. Canoes should never be piled on their ends or on the gunwales on the ground. The moisture in the ground will encourage the rotting of the wood." May suggests the canoes be laid upside down across two logs or sawhorses so they remain dry and off the damp ground.

She suggests the craft be painted only when the work is warranted and the hull should be sanded first before the paint is applied. "If you paint over paint you will not get a good bond and you are only adding weight to your boat," she comments.

May has noticed a resurgence in the popularity of canoes during the past few years. No doubt the high cost of gas and oil has turned some individuals away from motor powered craft, as well as a heightened awareness of physical fitness. May also thinks the appeal of a quiet ride on still water is one that cannot be topped.

during the last two years have increased three times faster in Canada than in the U.S.

The bathroom tissue companies are "rolling" Ontario consumers and Frank Drea is oiling the spindle!

This rip-off tissue issue was discussed at great length in Mr. Drea's estimates last fall and ultimately he was forced to produce figures which confirmed the tremendous discrepancy between the Can-U.S. prices. With his defence of the companies finally being broken, he said this (as recorded in Hansard October 31st, 1979): "Mr. Swart, in order to clear the air on toilet tissue which seems to vary from day to day, I will have our chief economist complete an in-depth investigation. It will take some time, but I will send you the results of that before the next session commences, Mr. Swart." Because of the work I had done on the pricing issue, I then asked Mr. Drea if he would have his economist contact me occasionally during the investigation. His reply was: "Yes, Mr. Swart."

Well, the "next session" commenced more than six weeks ago and not only have I received no report, but not once have I been contacted on the matter by the economist or anyone else in Mr. Drea's ministry. So much for Drea's commitment! So much for Drea's concern about the consumer! With prices outstripping average income at an increasingly rapid pace, it's time Mr. Drea stopped the rip-off or be flushed out of his Ministry!

Take your pick

As the season progresses, more of Ontario's fresh fruits and vegetables appear. And each year, marketing specialists at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food find that there are an increasing number of people who are interested in picking their own produce on Ontario farms. It's an excellent way to obtain quantities of fruits and vegetables, especially for preserving. It's also a great family outing and an enjoyable way to spend a few hours.

Before embarking on a farm outing, phone ahead. Check to be sure the farm is open for business that day and that the products are available and ready to be picked. All crops have different harvest dates and uncontrollable factors, such as weather, may affect the yield and harvest dates of various crops.

Most farms sell containers, but you may find it more convenient to take your own. That way you can plan exactly how much you want to pick and avoid coming home with too much produce.

Plan to arrive at the farm early in the day, to beat the heat and get the best selection. Wear cool, comfortable clothing to make the bending and stretching easier.

When you arrive at the farm, always check with the farmer for directions on where and how to pick the produce.

A current list of pick-your-own farms in Ontario, including the types of farms and how to get there, is available from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. For your free copy write to:

considered as adequate compensation for the problems created by the MOE.

While this suggestion of pressing legal action against a provincial ministry appeared to have been made tongue in cheek, the idea quickly gained favour with other members at the council table. The settlement to be demanded from the ministry was increased to $750,000 before the discussion was over.

Brandon told the meeting, "We have spoken to MOE officials a number of times and have never received any satisfaction. It is time we either get some action from them or compensation."

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt agreed, "We have never received a blooming nickel for all our trouble," he told the meeting. Indicating the difficulty that some residents have had in finding the location of the sewer hook-up, Nesbitt stated, "It is surprising that we haven't been sued for all the lawns which have been torn up."

The council agreed that the municipality's lawyer will be instructed to inform the Ministry of Environment that unless the problems of the roads and access route to the water tank are resolved by June 1, the municipality will take legal action to obtain compensation.

Protect wild flowers

There is, undeniably, in all of nature (as in all men), a will to live. A reverence for life and compassion for all living creation is a rationale supremely important in our lives.

Wild flowers are living entities, and as they share with us the divine gift of life, they are fellow creatures, and have a right, however humble, to their place in the universe.

The beautiful White Trillium - emblem flower of our Province of Ontario - is a splendid example. It has always been a favourite, and is wont to be gathered in huge bunches each May by well-meaning children and grown-ups alike. It is a perennial and as soon as the flowering season is over, the plant sets its green leaves to work and sends down food to the bulb to build up its sprout for the succeeding year. The plant's collar of green leaves stands at the top of the flowering stalk, and when we pluck the stalk the plant dies, or is left without sprout or seed.

All leafy-stemmed wild flowers (such as Lady-slippers, wild lilies, etc.) are in the same category as the Trillium and to pick them is to destroy the plant, so dependent are they on their leafy stems to complete their growing and reproductive cycle.

Some of our loveliest wild flowers are annuals - or biennials - that die in the year of their bloom. By picking these we prevent the seeding and doom the plants to extinction. The Blue Fringed Gentian is an outstanding example. Those who have been in the habit of picking these flowers have done so, no doubt, in perfect innocence, but if they revisit in succeeding years, they will note that where they have done their picking, the colonies have either dwindled greatly or completely disappeared.

The perennial Cardinal Flower (one of our most outstanding red wild flowers) has suffered unmercifully in recent years through picking and destruction of habitat.

Here in our Province of Ontario, with ever-increasing housing development, areas where wild flowers grow and flourish are becoming scarcer and scarcer.

Wild flowers do not take kindly to transplanting to our gardens, or removal to an area where, without exceeding skill, expertise and knowledge of soil and habitat requirements, they will ultimately die.

Our native wild flowers never look so well in a trim garden bed as they do in their natural setting of leafy grove, wooded swamp or sphagnum bog, with the freedom of the wild and the companions nature has assigned them.

Should you be impelled to move wild plants due to development and the ultimate destruction of the place where they are flourishing, endeavour to duplicate exactly the condition where they are found growing.

It would seem that those of us who are privileged to enjoy a "cottage retreat" would be loathe to destroy the natural surroundings. This is not so.

How much preferable it would be to leave "the wild to the wild". With so many attractive domestic plants to challenge our "green thumbs" - would it not be better to confine our activities to plant boxes, hanging pots, and beds adjacent to the cottage, wherein plants such as Geraniums, Petunias and Impatiens could supply attractive and colourful displays? By so doing, we will have the best of two worlds - the natural area which will provide unending pleasure if its development is followed - and a display nearby for our personal care and attention.

The floral symbol of the province, the Trillium, can be found in abundance now in the forests of the Highlands.

An editorial in a recent issue of the British Columbia Wildlife Review states in part: "Few would argue that the very existence of wildlife adds a certain quality to our surroundings. When wildlife is lost from an area, our recreational options are reduced accordingly; our lives are just a little poorer for the loss. In short, our environment, in the broadest sense of the word, is degraded. The process has already begun which, if left unchecked, may result in conditions that we will ourselves be unable to live in. It is simply a matter of degree."

Good outdoor manners consist of enjoying but not destroying. Leave the plants for others to see. Keep in mind: "LET NO ONE SAY - AND SAY IT TO YOUR SHAME - THAT ALL WAS BEAUTY HERE BEFORE YOU CAME!"

No profit from shoreline sale says council

If there is one aspect of the 66 foot shoreline frontage controversy which the members of Lutterworth Township council agree on, it is that the townships should not use the closing of the land to make money.

The matter was discussed at the regular meeting of the council Thursday evening. All of the members of council agreed that the price charged to the taxpayers should represent the administrative costs incurred by the municipality in the closing.

The matter was raised by the Reeve, Ron Gambell, who asked for the councillor's comments on various aspects of the controversy. He said that other members of county council would be bringing their suggestions to the next meeting, (which takes place today, May 21), and that he would like the guidance of the members of the Lutterworth council.

Deputy Reeve Glyn Lewis pointed out to the meeting that the ratepayers had already been paying taxes for buildings which were constructed on the 66 foot allowance. "The municipality has been receiving the benefit of that income over the years so I don't think we should 'rook' them when it comes to closing and selling the allowance," Lewis commented.

Councillor Bill Valentine agreed with this stand. He noted that lakefront property owners have been paying higher taxes and that it would not be fair to charge more than the costs of the land transfer experienced by the township.

Reeve Gambell emphasized that the township will not be allowing the closure of areas which provide public access to lakes or rivers. He indicated that those areas which are now used by the public for access, should remain open to the public. "Many people seem to think we are going to close out the public from the township lakes," he commented, "but these areas will remain open."

The reeve predicted that when ratepayers discover the cost of the closing and amounts of red tape involved in the process that many will not be so enthusiastic about the idea. Councillor Bill Valentine commented that a suggestion made by Bert Shingler of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers Association that the closing would cost $250 was "a lie". Valentine said the spokesman was "floating a deliberate lie", and that there were many additional costs to be taken into consideration when undertaking the closing procedure.

The council was in agreement, however, that the township should not attempt to make money out of the closing and sale of lakefront property.

In what many people feel is a precedent setting case, the Lutterworth council recently agreed to sell a portion of the shore allowance, located under a cottage, to that propertyholder. The transfer was approved by the County Council and now apparently needs only the approval of the Minister of Housing before taking effect.

Guild gets OAC grants

The Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts was the recipient of two grants announced recently by the Ontario Arts Council.

The local organization will receive $945 from the provincial body for the day-to-day operations of the guild and $550 to sponsor touring art shows in the area.

The County Concert Entertainment Series, also a part of the Guild, received $2000 to assist with touring arts as well.

The grants were announced earlier this month by the chairman of the Ontario Arts Council, Arthur Gelber.

Haliburton logging and sawmill expertise to help rebuild Caribbean island homes

Two county politicians will be slipping away to the Caribbean in about a week's time.

The pair, Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt and Stanhope Deputy Reeve Elgin Stouffer, are not leaving in search of warmer weather or broad sandy beaches. While no doubt they'll find plenty of those commodities, the two are leaving to help people on the island nation of Dominica to establish a sawmill.

The circumstances that take these two county residents to this small island located about halfway down the Caribbean chain, began last August. At that time two devastating hurricanes slammed into the island knocking out vital services and destroying many homes.

After the storms had passed it was estimated that 25,000 people of a total population of 70,000 were without homes.

Dominica is a fertile island about 15 miles by 25 miles long. It supplies many of the other islands in the Caribbean with fruits and vegetables. Much of the island is also conducive to the growth of timber and it has been estimated that over 10 million board feet of lumber per year is produced in the tropical rain forests.

Despite this glut of ready timber, the nation lacks one vital link in the tree-to-lumber process, a sawmill.

Without a sawmill the country has been forced to import all of its lumber needs, expending scarce foreign reserves on the milled lumber, while its hills are covered in the very product it was forced to import.

The ravages of the hurricane brought the situation to the attention of Rotary International and the Canadian government. Together they pooled their resources purchased a sawmill near Sarnia for $300,000, and started plans for shipping the plant to the island.

Co-ordinator for the project was Jack Hope, a former acquaintance of Elgin Stouffer. Hope was aware that Stouffer had operated a similar sawmill in the county for 35 years. He contacted the Stanhope resident and offered him an opportunity to assist in setting up the new operation on the island. Stouffer readily agreed and upon learning that Hope was also looking for someone to teach tree felling and log skidding, suggested the Minden Reeve. Nesbitt agreed to go as well, and for the past three months the two, along with a third individual from Guelph, have been following the progress of the packing and shipping of the plant.

The sawmill, a nearly new operation, had to be dismantled and loaded on three trailers for the overland trip to Florida. As of last week two of the trailers were already on their way to the southern United States and the third was expected to leave shortly. Once in Florida, the equipment will be loaded on a barge and towed to the capital city of Rousseau where it will be unloaded.

As soon as the plant arrives in Dominica the two Haliburton County residents will leave for the island to help the natives erect the sawmill and teach them how to operate it. It is expected they will stay on the island for about a month.

In addition to the sawmill, the package includes a skidder, fork lift truck and other machinery necessary for the efficient operation of the plant.

One of the problems facing Stouffer, who will assist with the plant set-up and operation, is the conversion of the sawmill from electric to diesel power. The island has very little electrical power and it was felt the use of diesel fuel would be more economical.

Once in operation the sawmill should provide the population of Dominica with the lumber necessary to reconstruct the homes and other buildings which were destroyed last year. In addition, once the local demand has been met, there is a possibility that the nation could become an exporter of finished lumber, turning what was once a drain on the nation's foreign reserves into a boost for the local economy.

Council approves 25 lots on lake

Following a closed meeting Wednesday afternoon the members of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council have formerly approved the change in the subdivision on Minden Lake. The developer of the property, Elmar Hodsell, met with the council behind closed doors to discuss the details of the project.

The developer had presented a plan for a subdivision which would have included 31 lots last year and that plan had been accepted by the council as well. Members of the Minden Lake Ratepayers Association had objected strongly to the plan and an Ontario Municipal Board hearing had been held earlier this year to hear the grievances. A decision from the OMB has yet to be handed down.

However, late last month Hodsell approached the council with a revised plan for the subdivision which he thought would eliminate some of the objections of the property owners on the lake. The 25 lot plan was presented at that time and members of council appeared to be in favour of the idea.

According to the resolution passed following the closed meeting Wednesday, the council has formerly accepted the subdivision with a 25 lot configuration and one area set aside for a park. The plan will now be sent on to the OMB for their consideration.

4 from county serve NDP

Four county residents have been chosen to serve on the executives of the Victoria-Haliburton provincial and federal New Democratic Party organizations. The two were chosen at a joint meeting held recently in Lindsay.

Harold Broadhagen of Haliburton Village and Marg Daniel of Wilberforce were chosen as members at large for the federal wing of the party while Bill Davis of Haliburton and Allen Scott of Wilberforce will serve in the same capacity for the provincial riding.

The executive will be in office until 1981. Others in the federal division include: past president Allan McPhail of Cannington; president A.E. Starr of Little Britain; first vice president Art Field of Little Britain; secretary Ralph Hart of Lindsay; treasurer Joan Davis of Cannington; and members at large, Jack Allan of Georgina Township, Ben Howlett of south Victoria County, Mrs. Howard Gordon of Peterborough County, Yoly Brown of Brock Township and Patrick Daniel as an ex officio member. Daniel was the party's candidate in the last federal election.

Members of the provincial executive for the coming year include: president Art Field of Little Britain; first vice president Ben Howlett of Little Britain; secretary A.E. Starr of Little Britain; treasurer Joan Allison of Lindsay; membership secretary George Hughes of Janetville; and members at large Ralph Hart of Lindsay, Frank Staples of Lindsay, Keith Dewar of Pontypool.

Galway-Cavendish notes

The following are highlights from the May 10 meeting of the Galway-Cavendish Township Council:

The council enacted a new by-law which would permit the construction of a sundeck on cottages built prior to the passing of by-law 78-43, if that cottage is located within 70 feet from the high water mark. The sundeck must be attached to the cottage and must adhere to the following conditions:

- the deck shall not be more than 12 feet from the cottage.
- the deck shall not come closer than 20 feet to the high water mark.

-no roof or any structure shall be erected on or under the sun deck except for a hand rail.

Clerk treasurer Joan McCausland was honoured by the members of the council who passed a resolution marking Municipal Clerk's week. According to the proclamation, signed by Reeve Carl Brickman, the week was declared, "...in honour of their outstanding contribution and dedication to the communities they serve."

A Lindsay man has been charged with impaired driving after his vehicle left Highway 35 south of Minden and ended up on its roof in the ditch. The car, driven by Donald L. Cresswell, 59, was travelling south on the highway when the mishap occurred shortly after 9.30 a.m., May 15. According to police the vehicle struck the west shoulder of the road and went out of control veering across the two lanes of the highway before entering the west ditch and rolling over. The driver sustained a number of minor injuries. Damage to the car was estimated at $5000. The mishap was investigated by Constable Dennis Potter.

by Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists

"Nature's balance" is a commonly-used phrase to describe the interactions between foxes and rabbits, owls and mice, predators and prey. But a natural balance can also be shown to exist between species that die out in an area and species that immigrate to take their place, forming an equilibrium that is maintained over time.

The importance of this balance has been shown by the study of islands, where the invasion of new plants or animals, through migration or dropping of seeds, is more difficult. As a result, the natural populations on these islands reach an equilibrium at a level with fewer species than a similar area on the mainland would support. A number of island studies have gone even further, showing that species richness is lower for smaller islands, or for islands more isolated from the mainland.

These same principles can be applied to other kinds of natural islands. In Southern Ontario, for example, mature woodlots are surrounded by a sea of farmland, effectively making them islands. If you were a wood thrush, needing shady woods for your nesting, that farmland is every bit as sterile for you as an ocean would be.

To keep as many species of wild plants and animals in Ontario as possible, we should pay attention to the lessons provided by these islands. In designing nature reserves, for example, we can make the most of land purchases by setting aside large blocks of habitat where possible instead of an equal acreage of scattered smaller islands of the same woodlands. If we must use smaller blocks, we can try to maintain clusters as close together as possible, so that species can cross more easily from one to another. And we can pay particular attention to linking our natural islands, through wooded valleys or fencerows to encourage species migration.

The lessons from island studies also serve to highlight the importance of existing natural corridors such as the Niagara Escarpment, where the almost continuous stretch of natural habitat provides a rich mosaic of plants and animals. The challenge now is to somehow find the means to preserve that continuity and ensure that the escarpment does not become a series of isolated islands with fewer species as a result.

Merchant opinion to be sought on Sunday closing

Merchants in Anson, Hindon and Minden townships who are likely to be affected by a store closing by-law are being asked to comment on the proposal by the municipal council.

The matter has been under consideration by the council for the past few months with little progress being made in deciding how to define the establishments which will be allowed to remain open on Sundays. The intent of the request, appears to be to ensure large grocery stores are not opened Sunday during the summer months.

Last year in Haliburton Village the two large grocery stores in that community began opening on Sundays. Merchants operating small convenience stores in and near the community expressed concern at that time that the larger stores would hurt their trade on that one day of the week.

The Minden council has been unable to decide what criteria should be used for establishing the stores that can remain open or must be closed on Sunday. According to the by-law enforcement officer, Dick Schell, the municipality's lawyer has advised that the council has the power to determine which stores can remain open on a Sunday.

It was suggested that merchants in the municipality be advised that such a by-law is under consideration and that their input would be appreciated.

Further consideration of the Sunday closing restrictions was put over until the next meeting when it is hoped a polling of the area merchants will have been completed.

HHSS continues to dominate track meets

Haliburton County athletes have continued their dominance of track and field competitions in the area, successfully defending their status as the top high school team in the 'A' division. The squad won the Kawartha championship for their section May 14 at a meet held at Trent University.

The championship win means the school retains title to the Paul Pearson trophy, awarded each year to the top school in the 'A' group.

HHSS amassed 164 points to charge ahead of their nearest rival, Trinity College, which scored 109 points.

There were 19 schools competing in the Kawartha meet representing various divisions. In the overall standings the team from Haliburton placed seventh with the junior boys taking top honours in their division with a 65 point total.

The next hurdle for the athletes is the Central Ontario Secondary School Association track and field meet scheduled for Thursday at Trent University. Among those students from HHSS who qualified for the meet are the following:

Midget girls: Signe Tashlin, who placed first in the long jump and third in the 400 metres; Marla MacNaull, third in the 800 metres and fourth in the long jump.

Junior girls: Margie Newton, third in the high jump.

Senior girls: Helen Hellquist, second in the 1500 metres and fourth in the 800 metres; Carol Lee, third in discus; Sandra Kieckheffer, fourth in shot put; Darlene Barnhart, fourth in javelin; and the following members of the open girls 1600 metre relay team which placed third, Helen Hellquist, Signe Tashlin, Marla MacNaull and Margie Newton.

Junior boys: Mike Hatkoski, first in pole vault and first in javelin; Butch Manary, first in discus and third in shot put; Tony Scheffee, third in 400 metre hurdles, a record; Sean Harrison third in the 400 metre hurdles; Paul Madden, fourth in the 3000 metres; and Terry Allore, fourth in discus.

Senior boys: Mike Iles, second in 110 metre hurdles; Kevin Newell, second in 400 metre hurdles and fourth in 110 metre hurdles; and Tim Davies, fourth in pole vault.

Hustlers ready for season start

The Minden entry in the Tri-County Fastball League takes to the field tonight (May 21) in Bobcaygeon in the opening game of the 1980 season. The team this year is being sponsored by the Rockcliffe Hotel and will be known as the Hustlers.

The squad will be coached by Craig Stamp and Jack Snell. They will also be pitching for the team.

All home games for the Hustlers will be on Wednesday evening at the Minden diamond behind the arena. Earlier this week Snell said that the team will be using foggers to keep the mosquito population down in an effort to boost attendance. Except on very windy nights last year the fans and players were tormented by swarms of mosquitoes.

The roster this season includes Jack Snell and Craig Stamp on the mound, Dave Dollo catcher, Bernie Nicholls, Barry Shaw, Jim Keetch, and Brian Shaw sharing duties along the baselines and Bob Johnson, John Welch, Brian Mullholland, Dwight Sisson, Larry Kent and Harris Steele covering the three field positions.

The schedule for the season shapes up as follows:

- May 21 - at Bobcaygeon
- May 25 - at Lindsay Jrs.
- May 28 - home to Fenelon Falls
- June 2 - at Fenelon Falls
- June 4 - home to Lindsay Jrs.

No Saturday closing plans says Ouellet

Canadian Postmaster General, Andre Ouellet has responded to a resolution passed by the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council.

Ouellet assured the council that the Saturday closing of post offices in rural areas would not be undertaken. "...until an overall study of rural mail service is completed." The head of the Canadian postal system said the Canadian Association of Postmasters and Assistants (CAPA) would be consulted before any such policy was implemented.

It was a letter from the Minden Assistant Postmaster, Lloyd Johnson, a member of CAPA, which had prompted the resolution from the local council and a number of other councils in the county. Johnson had indicated in the letter that the government appeared to be considering the possibility of eliminating Saturday service at the smaller post offices in the country, including those in Minden and Haliburton.

Ouellet commented that an ongoing review of postal service has been taking place across the country in an effort to eliminate the deficit experienced by the agency. "The current review, which was begun by the Deputy Postmaster General at the request of the CAPA has not been completed and I can reaffirm earlier assurances that no changes will be made without full consultations," Ouellet's letter stated.

Objectors withdraw rezoning complaints

Objections registered, by three adjacent landowners, to the rezoning of a portion of property behind the Brown Owl Restaurant have been withdrawn.

The objections were heard at the May 14 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township. The three had been notified after Leroy Lichty, owner of the restaurant, applied to the municipality for the zoning change from residential to commercial.

The greatest concern on the part of those appearing before council was the end use of the property. Margaret Ross, owner of Maggies Marvelous Munchies, said she did not want a used car lot, "or that sort of thing" being built on the property. Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt assured her that any request for that type of business in the area would require the council's approval. She agreed to withdraw her objection if the land was put to use for food, fuel or accommodations purposes.

Marj Young, a resident of South Water Street, also expressed concern over the type of business that might be operated on the land. "I don't want just anything going in there," she commented.

Ken Fielding, the operator of the Dixie Lee Chicken franchise on Highway 35 also objected. He expressed concern about the type of business which could be established on the land. He asked the reeve if, for example, a cement plant would be permitted. Nesbitt responded that application would have to be made first to the township council.

Fielding then asked the council how they could control any commercial operation from being opened on the land once it is zoned for general commercial use. "I have no objection to the Brown Owl expanding," Fielding told the meeting. "I just want to protect my investment." Councillor Stuart Brandon told the objectors that the zoning by-law of the municipality spells out what commercial enterprise can be operated in that area. He said that a building permit, indicating the final use of the building must be obtained, and so the council can ensure the use remains within the restrictions as indicated in the by-law.

With all three objections withdrawn the by-law changing the zoning designation will be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board without a hearing.

Green Thumb Corner

While gardening is not generally considered to be a competitive sport, in most communities there is at least one judging of the local vegetable and flower crop. Russ Gomme of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food provides a number of interesting tips on the nurturing and preparation of prize winning entries for competitions.

Best at the fair

If you spend time and effort growing beautiful flowers and delicious fruits and vegetables, don't hide your talents. Take a little extra time to prepare the fruits of your labor for competition.

You can find possible recognition for your effort at more than 500 competitive events held annually by agricultural and horticultural societies across the province. These friendly competitions give amateurs an opportunity to show off their best produce. The results will encourage others, as well as yourself.

Here's how to start and have a better-than-average chance of winning. First, become a member of your local group. The cost is nominal - about $1 to $3 per person. Read the show rules carefully. Many societies publish the rules in book form for each member. (The Haliburton County Fall Fair (1980) book is available from the Stedmans Store, Minden)

Select the best varieties, when growing flowers and vegetables from seed. Plant them in your best garden soil - a well-drained, protected, sunny location is preferred. Follow the recommendations on the seed packet, or follow cultural practices given in the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food publications, available at local agricultural offices. Timing is important. Know the approximate date at local agricultural offices. Timing is important. Know the approximate date from seed to maturity, so you will have plenty of specimens to choose from when 'showtime' arrives.

Mr. Tom Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Glazer, Mr. Paul Perk, were all up to their respective cottages.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Miller had a houseful, with relatives from Toronto and Kirkfield. Monday night there was a nice display of fireworks at their house.

Hint of the week: Salt makes a good ant repellent. It will keep them off the kitchen floor and counter tops. Just sprinkle salt along baseboard and in corners of counter bases.

You don't have to call me Mrs. Lacey, you don't have to call me J.L., or you don't have to call me Mrs. C. Lacey. Just call me Jean at 286-1559.

Take it easy now. God Bless until next time.

your produce just as you would if you were shopping. You have to convince the judge that your entries are the best. Select for uniformity, color, and freshness. Choose produce that is free of insect and disease damage.

It is best to select vegetables that are slightly larger than medium size, rather than extra-large specimens. Oversized vegetables tend to be coarse in texture and poor in flavor. There are some exceptions however, such as onions and squash. Select under-ripe rather than over-ripe vegetables.

Keep in mind the number of specimens required for the class. Only a certain number can be entered, but take along a couple of extras in case some are damaged in transit.

In most cases, it is best to clean specimens, including carrots, beets, turnips and potatoes, with a dry cloth. Washing isn't recommended. Trim the outer leaves of such leafy vegetables as cauliflower and cabbage neatly. If you are not sure, ask a show committee member whether the calyx on tomatoes should be removed, or whether rows of corn kernels should be exposed.

Selecting fruit for competition is almost the same as selecting vegetables. Sometimes, it is necessary to pick fruit early for the show. If this is the case, keep the fruit cool, and avoid drastic changes in temperatures.

Selecting flowers

Be particular when you begin choosing flowers for show. Cut flowers when the sun is not shining on the plants - early morning or evening is best. Take a pail of tepid water out to the garden when you are ready to pick. Use a sharp knife to cut flowers: dull tools crush stems. Protect flowers from wind, heat and evaporation, after cutting, to maximize keeping qualities. Place the stems in deep water immediately after cutting, and leave them for at least four hours before the show. Remember, fresh uniform flowers with even blooms, win extra points.

The best time to pick roses is when the outer petals begin to unfold. Pick dahlias in the evening when they are in full bloom, and gladiolus when the first buds open fully. Most other flowers should be picked before they reach full bloom.

To keep tulips, daffodils, and other stems straight, wrap them carefully with newspaper before placing them in water. Flowers, such as roses and begonias, like a fine mist of cool water. Never spray petals of delphiniums, petunias or sweet peas, water spots will develop.

Make sure pails and other containers for conditioning flowers are clean. A little sugar in the water will help prolong the life of cut flowers. To overcome wilting, place 5 centimetres (2 inches) of the cut end into hot water for a few minutes, then add tepid water almost up to the flower head.

A season or two of competition, examining and comparing your entries with the winners, can be very good experience. Try it this year. Competitions begin in mid-spring and continue until frost.

There was a party on Sunday at the Eric Cooper home at which a shower of Baby gifts were given to Carol Miles. She thanked everyone and among the guests were Mrs. Jim Miles, Judy and Dorinda and Susan White, all of Barrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulkner, Natalie and Scott of Brampton were weekend guests with Mrs. Verna Jarvis.

A group of relatives and friends gathered Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Marjorie Francis, this was in honour of her father Jim Minaker, on the occasion of his 87th birthday.

Stuart Bull of Oakville spent the weekend visiting friends and relatives.

We saw Chris Pritchard who is now home after his term with the Armed Forces.

Weekend guests with the Bob Hughes were Blake and Rachel Hughes of Mississauga.

It was a busy weekend with two dances, the Mayfest on Saturday night and the other with a rock group Sunday night both at the Recreation Centre.

Glenn Stamp of Oshawa and Glenda Stamp of Whitby visited relatives over the weekend.

The Dave Andersons visited with his grandmother Nell Anderson for a few days.

We noticed the Antique Cars were in the village, and some vintage ones as well, even saw one like we used to have, brings back memories.

All their friends send good wishes to Taylor Kernohan who was rushed to Ross Memorial Hospital late last week and Marian Ingram in the Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

There was a large crowd at the Puppet Show at Municipal Hall on Saturday afternoon. This was presented by Deckhands with puppeteers Karen Merrill of Bailieboro, Denise Smith of Millbrook and Rosella Lamb of Cavan. There will be another Puppet Show in the summer so watch for posters on this.

Gerald Coulter of Toronto visited over the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Angus Coulter and other relatives as well.

Now open in the Mall is Partners, a Delicatessen and also Dave's Chips beside the Vegetable Stand.

Some people might complain, but don't; They suffer pain, yet smile. They get more than their share of knocks, Yet go that second mile. But keeping on, the brave find out There's still so much to sing about.

It certainly looks like Spring around Hyland Crest these days. The maintenance staff are busy painting the bedrooms and even though some of our residents have to move to another room for a while, it is worth it all to move back to a nice bright, clean room. Outside, the spring flowers are beginning to bloom, and the smell of fresh cut grass reminds us that the nice weather is definitely on its way.

Monday morning, we had our regular Fun & Fitness program, and later in the afternoon, the ladies worked on their crafts. We would like to welcome Kathy Gartshore to our list of volunteers. Kathy comes every Monday to lend a hand at crafts.

Tuesday morning, Reverent Mervin Kurtz of the Haliburton Pentecostal Church held an inspiring service in the Chapel. Mrs. Agnes Taylor played the organ while we sang some old favorite gospel hymns.

Later in the afternoon several people went to the auditorium to view two very interesting movies. "The End of the Road" told us about the longest road in the world in the remotest part of Alaska. The road runs 250 miles north of Alaska and there is Canada's largest oil field. The people there have to endure the bitter cold and the winters are eight months long. This film also showed the installation of the Trans Atlantic pipeline which is now complete.

"Tight Lines North" was filmed in Northern Manitoba where they were testing fishing rods and reels. We saw the fisherman catching Northern Pike and Pickerel and were amazed at their size. The gentlemen in the audience particularly enjoyed this action movie.

Thursday afternoon the ladies of the Wilberforce U.C.W. served a lovely assortment of homemade goodies for the Tea Party. The residents enjoyed their weekly tea party very much.

Friday was a beautiful day, so we decided it would be a good day to go for a drive. We filled the bus, and went to Norland and went across to Kinmount. On the way home, we stopped at Kawartha Dairy and treated ourselves to one of their delicious ice cream cones. It was a nice outing, and everyone enjoyed the day very much.

The Victoria Day Holiday is over and there was a great number of summer visitors in the area. A little rain on Sunday but otherwise the weather was great. The woods are full of trilliums these days and the trees are breaking out in leaf. It certainly is a beautiful time of year.

The Carnarvon Brownie Pack have been busy selling cookies recently and also enjoyed a tour of the OPP detachment in Minden during Police Week.

Gail Barnhart enjoyed a trip to New Brunswick last week. She and her sister Sandra drove to Fredricton, with Greg Bishop and his parents to attend Greg's graduation from the University of New Brunswick. Greg has received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Engineering. Congratulations Greg.

Some four hundred people attended the 4th Annual Scout Festival of Fun held last week at the high school in Haliburton. Len Salvatori did a great job as M.C. for the evening. The cubs opened the evening with a Grand Howl and a few words of welcome by one of our Carnarvon Cubs, Bradley Archer. We were treated to music by Bill Gliddon's school choir, a music ensemble from Archie Stouffer school in Minden, a selection of Gospel songs by the Pastor of the Full Gospel Lighthouse and his wife, selections of country music by Carmen Coumbs and his band and the Guild Choir under the direction of Marilyn Stouffer. All of these groups gave excellent performances. We also enjoyed a sing-a-long of old favorites with the "Happy Gang" from Extencicare. One of the residents of Extencicare sang for us and another recited a poem. Andy Cooper did an amusing recitation and the Haliburton Highlands Little Theatre was represented by two of its members. We Warburtons of Scarborough, the Glen Sears of Oshawa and Sandra Sears of Toronto.

Tragedy came with the warm weather with some drownings and many accidents. You might be a good swimmer, but don't forget your life jackets; the water is not all that warm. Every weekend will be busy on the highways so drive carefully. Cheerio until next time.

also saw an excellent display of gymnastics by students of Mrs. Aymong's gymnastic club. It was a most enjoyable evening and the Haliburton County Chapter of the Association for Learning Disabilities is most grateful to the Scouting Association for the donation of the proceeds of this Talent Night.

Pam and Derek Rolfe attended the graduation of their son Paul on May 10 in Lindsay. Paul graduated as a geological technician from the Frost Campus of Sir Sandford College. He will be employed as an assistant to the Chief Geologist at Madawaska Mines near Bancroft, involved with exploration on the mine site for the summer months.

Don't forget. This Thursday evening is the date for the public meeting of the Haliburton County Chapter of the Association for Children With Learning Disabilities. (A.C.L.D.). The meeting is at the Secondary School in Haliburton and begins at 8 p.m. This meeting will take the form of a discussion with parents to plan a continuing program for the summer months. All interested parents are urged to attend. See you there.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Blake, Michelle and Peter spent the holiday weekend on Mountain Lake with Jim and Shirley Howe and family.

Paul and Gwen Harrison and Colin and Julie Russell of Montreal spent the weekend with their families here in Carnarvon.

This weekend saw the first publication of the Metro Carnarvon Cliffhanger - the New Metro Motto is "We're not here to see through each other - but to see each other through". This sounds like a great motto for a group of business people.

The track team from HHSS attended a track meet at Trent University in Peterborough last week and are to be congratulated. They came first among the smaller schools and 6th out of 19 schools, some of which were much larger than our school here.

Barb and Jim Fryer and boys spent the weekend visiting friends in the village.
